

Eric Schliesser (PhD 2002, The University of Chicago) is BOF Research Professor in Philosophy and Moral Sciences at Ghent University, Belgium. He has published widely on the history of early modern philosophy and science, especially, Newton, Spinoza, Huygens, Berkeley, David Hume, Sophie De Grouchy, Kant, and Adam Smith. He also writes about recent philosophy of economics, especially the so-called Chicago School. In addition, he is a prolific blogger.